SELF-INJURY WHAT IS IT? self-injury, or cutting, refers to deliberately causing physical harm to oneself without intending WHY DO PEOPLE SELF-INJURE? People often turn to self-injury as an unhealthy method of managing difficult feelings such os emotional distress, scaless, frustration, or as emotional distress, scaless, frustration, or programment of the control o overwhelming stress. CAUSES There's no one single cause that leads one single cause that leads someone to self-injury. In general, self-injury in general self-injury injury in general self-injury in g SYMPTOMS Scars, often in patterns Wearing long sleeves or long pants Self-injury may be to hide self-injury, even in hot weather an attempt to: Fresh cuts, scratches, bruises, · Manage or reduce severe bite marks or other wounds distress or anxiety. · Provide a distraction from Frequent reports of accidental injury. painful emotions. Feel a sense of control. Punish oneself. GETTING HELP Talk to someone you trust. They can help you take the PREVENTION first steps to successful treatment. There is no sure way to prevent someone's self-injurying behavior. But reducing the risk includes strategies that involve both · Call your mental health provider if you have one. individuals and communities · Call or text 988 to reach the 988 Suicide & Crisis · Identify someone at risk and offer help. Lifeline. For Spanish, call • Encourage supportive social networks. 1-888-628-9454. • Raise awareness. · Reach out to your school • Encourage friends to seek help. nurse or counselor. teacher, or healthcare provider. Reach out to a close RISK FACTORS friend or family member. · Contact a spiritual leader Teenagers and young adults are most or someone else in your likely to self-injury, but those in other faith community. age groups do it, too. Certain factors may increase the risk of self-injury: Having friends who self-injury. Past abuse or trauma. · Mental health issues. · Alcohol or drug use. If you've injured yourself severely, call 9-1-1!